morning, it was evident that the teacher had returned. In other words, Senator Aldrich, chairman of the finance committee, was in his seat when the senate convened, and at that time there was a full quorum to proceed with business. While Mr. Aldrich dld not reveal the secret of his where-abouts, during his two days' absence so much ruddier than it is ordinar-ily, that it was evident that he had put in most of his time in the open air. His return caused much gossip as to the possibility of getting a vote on the income tax proposition. Most senators believed the end was near. The fact that only Mr. Bulkeley's objection yesterday stood in the way of taking adjournment next Tuesday, and that the senators seemed almost ex hausted, led to the conclusion that the vote would be reached by that time, if not much earlier. Many predicted it for tomorrow and some were even inclined to think it might take place before adjournment today. Business began with the presentation of petitions relating to the cor-poration tax, many of which came from the far northwest. From Spoane, Wash, 106 merchants appealed to the senate for support of the tax said it safeguarded the private information of business institu ions The Inman Poulsen Lumber company, of East Portland, wanted the 'pernicious corporation tax" killed, while W. B. Ayer, of Portland, considered the proposed tax extremely unfair," as it places the burden only n the great industrial life of the

There was also a protest from the Mutual Insurance companies of New Jersey, which insisted that such cor porations were not the proper subject of taxation under the proposed scheme of taxing the corporations organized for profit.

Mr. Heyburne's objection was that the amendment was too indefinite to make it operative. The first provis ion of the bill fixes a tax of 2 per cent on the net income of corpora tions. The Idaho senator contended that, under this language, it would be quite impossible to determine the object of the bill or to enforce its provisions, because of its vagueness. He also claimed the tax being levied on all corporations, "organized for profit," included corporations that do no business except to collect rents, he said, would bring it nearly within the scope of the Pollock case, in which the income tax was declared to be invalid.

These objections provoked comment by Senators Aldrich, Root, Brande-gee, Nelson and others. Mr. Aldrich suggested that the language, called into question, had been passed upon by many distinguished lawyers. Sentor Root gave assurance that these objections would receive careful consideration of the finance committee, although he said he believed the amendment, as framed, was such as to insure its constitutionality.

Saying he preferred voting for an income rather than a corporation tax, Senator Raynor declared he would vote for the pending corporation tax if he could not have his first choice. "I believe," he added, "that this is an absolutely constitutional measure. This bill is unjust and inequitable, but when I cannot obtain an income tax, I will be forced to vote for this amendment, or leave the government bankrupt.
